HUMANITY.

The bird which soars on highest wing,
Builds on the ground her lovely nest;
And she which doth most sweetly sing,
Sings in the shade when all things rest
In lark and nightingale we see
What honour bath humanity.

When Mary chose the better part,
She meekly sat at Jesus' feet;
And Lydia's gentle opened heart
Was made for God's own temple meet
Fairest and best adorned is she
Whose clothing is humility.

The saint who wears heaven's brightest crown,
In deepest adoration bends;
The weight of glory bows him down,
Then most, when most his soul ascends;
Nearest the throne itself must be
The footstool of humility.

HUSBANDRY.

Why should all girls, a wit exclaimed,
Surprising farmers be?
Because they're always studying
The art of husbandry.

Encouragement to honest industry—
John D. Williams, one of the most eminent and wealthy merchants in Boston makes the following sensible remarks. He says—

"It was once said to me, sneeringly, 'who are you, for I can remember when you went to market?' My reply was, 'so can I; and when I sold potatoes for twenty-five cents per bushel, and carried them on my back nearly half a mile into the bargain, and I feel as if it were so ordered in Providence, I could do it again.' Now, as this is my second coming before the people with my own name, it may gratify the curiosity of some of the gentlemen to whom I address myself, to know who I am. By the family record, I was born on Saturday morning, January 28, 1770 and carried to church and christened the same day. I lived with my father in Roxbury, as a farmer, until May, 1792. My father designed me for a farmer, and bought a farm for me, but the man he bought it of fell from his bargain, and I then commenced business as a merchant in Watertown, in company with three others in May, 1792, and dissolved the co partnership in June, 1803. I then commenced business for myself in the south part of the city of Boston I received my education at Roxborough school, at the time of our revolutionary war—working on the farm in summer, and studying in the winter and water evenings. I then thought my father worked me hard, but I could not complain, for he worked much harder himself, and taught me a most sacred regard for truth, and always to endeavor to do as I would be done by—and never waste my time nor my money. From the industrious habits I then acquired under my parental roof, and having adhered to them in after life, by my humble endeavors to make all dealings with my fellow men for mutual benefit, and never to deceive them knowingly, I have fully experienced, that what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again.

I came into the city without any friends, saving those which I gained by my fidelity when a boy, in selling vegetables; and they were many, for the late Hon. Thomas Russell & David Greene, Esq. and many others would lend me money, and endorse my notes at the bank, which laid the foundation of all my after usefulness and all the blessings I now enjoy. Some think labor is an evil, but I consider labor one of the greatest blessings conferred on man. It gives me a relish for my food and my sleep, and I am never troubled with the dyspepsia."

STRIKE EXTRA.

During one of the pleasant days of last week, says the New York Commercial Advertiser, in passing through Houston street, we noted a well known boot black, running himself by the side of a fence, knowing his usual industrious habits, we ventured to ask him why he was "holding on" there. "Oh, Boss," said he, "thee struck!" "Struck—for what?" More wages—can't black boot for six pence—Massa Bunter he ax more for brush—Massa Greenhouse raise the price five centum a dozen box o' blackens; must have a shillum. Oh, but Sep, I am an old customer; you won't raise on me. I'll send my boots, with a sixpence, and do you mind make them shine like a dollar. Yes, boss, I'll brush 'em a sixpence worth! Not doubting but they would be restored in decent order, we were not a little surprised to find them in the hall next morning one of them shining like a mirror, and the other covered with mud, with a note stating that he intended to assist the chimney sweeps in their turn out.

A remarkably great number of wolves have made their appearance in Sweden even in the vicinity of Stockholm itself, where one was lately found dead, partly eaten by its companions. This is looked upon as a proof of the extraordinary severity of the weather.

A man in New York, gives notice that he has invented a ferry boat, which will go at the rate of six miles an hour without steam, but hasn't the wherewithal to build one.

PROSPECTUS

For the continuation of the
CARROLL FREE PRESS.

THE interest of William Johnston, Esq., in this establishment, having been transferred to John Christy, the Free Press will in future be conducted by PEARCE & CHRISTY. The political complexion of this paper will not be changed—the editors being firm in their determination to preserve its neutral character. The transfer from Mr Johnston to Christy, has been made with the hope of ensuring the continuation of a newspaper in Carrollton. And with this view, the editors patronage equal to the merits and importance of their enterprise. One of the editors being a practical printer, and having determined to devote his time exclusively to the interest of the paper, it is confidently hoped that, with a reasonable increase of their subscription list, the Carroll Free Press may be continued to the mutual advantage of both subscribers and publishers.

Of the convenience and necessity of a public Journal, published at the county seat, every citizen of the county must be convinced; and the editors trust that, the people of Carroll will sustain them in their efforts to promote public good, and to secure an honest maintenance.

TERMS.—The Free Press will be published every Friday morning, at Two Dollars per annum, payable half yearly in advance. If payment be delayed until after the end of the year, $2.50 will be required. But as payment in advance is for the interest of all parties, this mode is respectfully recommended.

PROPOSALS FOR PUBLICATION OF THE OHIO STATE JOURNAL,
TWICE A WEEK TILL DEC. 1, 1836.

To be edited by J. Brulhache.

The high importance of disseminating correct information among the great body of the American people at the present alarming crisis in our national affairs, being universally admitted, it is deemed unnecessary to assign at length the reasons which seem to require the publication of a semi-weekly newspaper at the seat of government of this great State; at least until the coming struggle for the next Presidency shall have been brought to a close. Suffice it to observe, that a weekly journal, however capacious, must necessarily be too contracted, as well as too tardy in its operations, to meet the exigencies of the times. Two regular numbers per week, it is believed, will in a great measure, supply the acknowledged deficiency. In order, therefore, to insure a large circulation to the proposed publication, and place it within the reach of every one the price of subscription has been brought down to the lowest possible rate.

As the political opinions of the Editor are not unknown in Ohio, it is deemed unnecessary to give any other pledge of the course he intends to pursue, than to observe that, being fully persuaded the election of MARTIN VAN BUREN to the next Presidency must prove highly detrimental to the public interest, as well as imminently dangerous to the liberties of the citizen, he will zealously labor to prevent so deplorable a result, by affording an active, and so far as may depend upon him, an efficient support to THE CANDIDATE OF THE PEOPLE. From Maine to Georgia, the freemen of the United States are rushing to the rescue of the country with a spirit worthy of the days of '76. Nothing more is therefore necessary to secure to them an easy and complete triumph over the office-holders, than a perfect organization.—To effect this, so honorable and lasting principles, shall be a leading object of the Journal; and while most cordially responding to the recent enthusiastic demonstrations of public sentiment in favor of our distinguished fellow-citizen, WM. HENRY HARRISON, as Gen. Jackson's successor, it will treat with true fraternal kindness all those who, concurring with us in uncompromising opposition to Mr. Van Buren, may nevertheless deem Daniel Webster, or Hugh L. White, entitled to the preference. In other respects, the semi-weekly Journal will contain the current news of the day, and such other matters as shall be thought interesting or instructive; and nothing will be omitted, on the part of the Editor and Publishers, to render it worthy of an extensive and liberal patronage.

CONDITIONS.

THE OHIO STATE JOURNAL will be published on a large and handsome imperial sheet, twice a week, from the termination of the present Session of the General Assembly until the first day of December next, at the low rate of Three Dollars for each individual subscription; but County Committee, or individuals desirous of procuring extra numbers for distribution, may obtain ten copies for Twenty-five Dollars, twenty for Forty-Five Dollars, or fifty for One hundred Dollars—payment in all cases to be made in advance.

The weekly Journal will be issued as formerly; but such of the present subscribers as may be desirous of receiving the semi weekly in its place, will obtain the same upon the payment in advance of one dollar, in addition to their present subscription. Columbus, Feb. 29, (March 5) 1836

Periodical Literature.

CINCINNATI MIRROR.
Edited by W.D. Gallagher & T.H. Shreve.

A NEW VOLUME JUST COMMENCED.

CIRCUMSTANCES connected with Mr. Marshall's private arrangements, having induced him to discontinue 'The Buckeye,' that publication, in accordance with the wish of a large majority of its subscribers, will be issued hereafter under its old title, the 'CINCINNATI MIRROR.'

The undersigned, in becoming the proprietors of this extensively circulated periodical, have the gratification of stating to the old friends of the 'Mirror,' and to the more recent subscribers to the 'Buckeye,' that Messrs. William D. Gallagher and Thomas H. Shreve will resume its editorial management. In mentioning the names of these gentlemen, whose industry and literary qualifications are so well known, the publishers deem it superfluous to expatiate on the future character of the work; under their superintendence the CINCINNATI MIRROR attained its thousands of subscribers, and was recognized by most literary periodicals, in the union, as inferior to none of its contemporaries;—incontestible proofs of the estimation of their merits, and of the appreciation of Western Literature.

From the 'Syllogism' of the editors, on resuming their duties, we make the following extract: 'Gentlemen of means having become its proprietors, one difficulty which has always attended the Mirror, will hereafter not exist. We therefore respect for it at this time, knowing that it has suffered somewhat in pure estimation by the several phases which it has presented within a few months, the attention of the western community: It shall be our endeavor to inspire general confidence, and merit general support. In calling matter for the selected part of the Mirror, we shall diligently ransack the popular magazines of the day, and the various new books that are constantly issuing from the printing press; and we shall have, an especial eye, to variety and richness. In the original department, we have secured the constant assistance of a number of gentlemen of education, talent and experience as writers. With us, one important aim will be, to bring out and foster the unknown unconquered literary talent of the West. The cause of Western Literature we have long had at heart; and we have made some sacrifices and labored hard, and we trust not ineffectively, to arouse slumbering energies, and elevate the character of the literature of this section of the great Union. Anonymous correspondents shall receive from us respectful attention—but as we intend to make the CINCINNATI MIRROR a correct representative of the Literary Character of the West, we must be allowed the privilege of rejecting common place tales, prosing essays, lame verses, and crudities of all kinds.'

The arrangements which have been entered into, will place the CINCINNATI MIRROR under better auspices, than have attended it at any time since the period of its commencement. It will contain a larger quantity of reading matter than heretofore, and will be printed on superior or super royal paper, with entirely new brevity type. Every number will be furnished with a handsome cover; and the work will be issued punctually every Saturday morning, and be sent by mail the same day to distant subscribers.

TERMS:—Three Dollars per annum, if paid in advance, or Three dollars and fifty cents, if payment be delayed six months.

FLASH, RYDER, & Co.,
Booksellers and publishers,
Third st. near the Post Office.

N. B. The first number of the fifth volume of the Mirror was published on the first instant. Those persons who may order the work, within two or three months will please say whether they wish the numbers from the beginning of the volume. A handsome and well filled cover is published with each number. Between one and two pages of this is taken up with a Business Directory, in which may be found the names and locations of the principal business men of the city.
